Problem Definition

Rock Paradise is a store that specializes in crystals and gemstones. With the growing demand for online shopping, they are looking to establish their presence on the internet. To achieve this, they need a website that showcases their products in an organized manner, making it easy for customers to view and purchase the right product to meet their needs.

The website will be designed to display the various crystals and gemstones available at the store, including product details and pricing. Additionally, the website will feature a GeoLocation API (e.g., GoogleMaps) to provide customers with information on store locations. Feedback mechanisms will also be incorporated to allow customers to leave reviews and ratings for products they have purchased.

The website will be developed using HTML5, JavaScript, and Geolocation, ensuring that it is fully compatible with all leading browsers such as Chrome, IE, Firefox, etc. Several challenges need to be addressed in developing the website, including:

As more customers prefer online shopping, it is crucial to make it easy for them to find the product they need and make a purchase.

Not all customers are aware of the full range of products offered by Rock Paradise, leading to dissatisfaction when products do not meet their requirements or expectations.

Customers rely on reading reviews before purchasing products online, so it is essential to provide a platform for customers to share their experiences and ratings of products.

Existing customers may require assistance after installation, and Rock Paradise can provide support through phone or email. Additionally, many customers may prefer to visit the store to view the product before making a purchase.

The website will address these challenges, providing a seamless online shopping experience for customers while showcasing the full range of products offered by Rock Paradise. With this website, Rock Paradise aims to expand its reach and continue to provide high-quality products and customer service to its valued customers.

It is a long established fact that a reader will be distracted by the readable content of a page when looking at its layout. The point of using Lorem Ipsum is that it has a more-or-less normal distribution of letters, as opposed to using content here, content here, making it look like readable English

Golden Canary

The Golden Canary diamond was once displayed at the Dubai exhibition at DIFC, before being moved to Taipei (Taiwan), Geneva (Switzerland) and Hong Kong, finally, will be brought to New York, USA, in Sotheby's Magnificent Jewels auction on December 7. In particular, the diamond is auctioned without a reserve price - meaning it will sell for whatever is the highest price of the day.

Deep yellow in colour, the Golden Canary is part of a large rough, weighing almost 890 carats, found by a little girl while playing in her uncle's garden in the ruins of the Republic of Congo in the 1980s. The largest diamond ever found, it took almost 5 years to cut it into 15 small stones. The largest piece, measuring 407.5 carats in a shield cut, was named the Incomparable Diamond, making it the largest flawless diamond ever classified by the Gemological Institute of America and displayed at numerous exhibitions.

Recently, however, the owner of Incomparable Diamond recut the diamond into the classic pear shape to add more color and vibrancy, and renamed it Golden Canary, according to The National News. Re-cutting the diamond as it is now has increased brilliance, giving the diamond a new look. "Professionals take advantage of available advances in technology, computational modeling, and visual assessment to reshape the diamond," the Gemological Institute of America said in its grading report. Everything from the orientation to the shape and the cut is well thought out."
